WHERE PASSIONATE COOKS HOST DINING EXPERIENCES AT HOME

Co-founder and chief experience designer at NOSHTrekker, Tahnya Butterfield-Gill, wants meeting and incentive travel delegates to get an authentic taste of Singapore filled with nostalgia, heritage and tradition.

Butterfield-Gill, an Australian national who now calls Singapore home, said: "Singapore is an incredibly diverse place, not just culturally and ethnically, but also in the life experiences and interests that people have. The people of this country can be very generous and open. There are many things to see and do that are not featured in the guidebooks, particularly if you have specific interests. In our work, we have met people from all walks of life who have unique stories to tell."

NOSHTrekker presents an experience where delegates can spend time with local hosts as they prepare and serve home-cooked meals in the intimate setting of their homes. Indra Rani Iswaran, host of Plantation Table, is one of the passionate cooks and storytellers who regularly hosts guests at her table.

The granddaughter of a pioneer migrant from Jaffna in Ceylon, Iswaran's culinary heritage is rooted in Sri Lanka, where her family history dates back to the 17th century. Iswaran honed her taste buds by combining her mother's rich Jaffna cooking with Sulawesi, Cantonese and Peranakan flavours. She describes her bespoke menus as kampong (Malay for village) style.

"I lived in Singapore for five years and just returned on a business trip. After a long and busy week, we had a team dinner at the Plantation Table. It was the absolute perfect setting for an intimate dinner amid beautiful surroundings and architecture. The service from Indra Rani Iswaran was impeccable and the food divine. I would recommend to anyone looking to build teams, celebrate success, or just take a moment to slow down, breathe and enjoy life."

A JOURNEY THROUGH SINGAPORE'S RICH HISTORY

Founder and recipient of the 2017 Singapore Tourism Awards for Best Customer Service for Tour Guiding, Darren Goh enjoys tailoring walking tours that take meeting and incentive travel delegates off the beaten track.

Delegates will get a sneak peek into the hidden side of Singapore as they venture from the shores of the historic Singapore River through the gleaming skyscrapers of the CBD, past exquisite shop-houses in Chinatown, down to the public housing estate of Tanjong Pagar on foot and public transport. They will delve into the history, culture and development of Singapore and do as the locals do – like sampling a variety of local street food and visiting temples.

"I think there is a lot more to Singapore than people give us credit for," Goh said. "Beyond the shopping malls and the glass towers, we have culture, we have history, and we have a somewhat indefinable, still-evolving but definitely vibrant soul. There is a story behind every place. Singapore may not have the pyramids or the Great Wall, but this is my home, and it will always have a special place in my heart."

SINGAPORE SIDECAR VESPA TOUR AN IMMERSIVE VINTAGE EXPERIENCE

Simon Wong launched this charming experience after organising a series of vintage sidecar rallies to raise money for cancer research – a disease that tragically took the life of Wong's wife, Peikie Ng, in 2008. Memories of her have fuelled Wong's passion.

Meeting and incentive travel delegates will get up close and personal with the sights, sounds and flavours of Singapore – from a breezy open-air capsule just 20cm off the ground. The delightful sidecars provide the perfect selfie backdrop and often attract smiles from onlookers. Event planners can request a custom night ride to experience Singapore's vibrant supper scene, a half-day heritage tour or even a 30-minute spin to experience historic neighbourhoods like Joo Chiat, Katong and the Civil District.

Delegates can hop on and off at local kopitiam (local coffee shops) and are also offered 'in-flight' snacks and drinks by shops visited during the trip. An interactive experience that delegates won't soon forget.

British-born Wong shared: "My late wife, who was a designer and won the President's Design Award, brought me here – we made it home. Singapore is a place where one can get involved and contribute, and be made to feel thoroughly welcomed. The Asian Civilisations Museum granted a memorial bench to my wife for instance, made from 150-year-old gallery floorboards, which now sits outside the museum lobby. From my personal experience, it's a place that really respects its community."

FAST FACTS:

- Suitable for groups of 20 for up to 120 delegates on rotation throughout the day
- Sidecars go through a stringent road safety test by the government
- Delegates are only allowed to be riders, not drivers during this experience

THE FEAR FACTOR TOUR ADRENALIN-PUMPING TEAM BUILDING

Director of Woopa Travels Pte Ltd, TY Suen, has created an experience that requires meeting and incentive travel delegates to face their fears, both as individuals and in teams. The Fear Factor Tour is a competitive points-based experience with four key challenges:

Dark Room Experience: Delegates venture into a dark room, where they use their sense of touch, smell, taste and hearing to navigate their surroundings. Wrapping up the experience is lunch with local flavours enjoyed in the dark to further heighten the senses.

Exotic Places & Food Challenge: A guided tour through a series of checkpoints, where delegates must undertake "exotic" food challenges, like eating the famously pungent local King of Fruits, durian, while maintaining their composure.

Indoor Skydiving Challenge: Test the group's sense of balance and agility at iFly Singapore. This indoor skydiving venue, located on Sentosa island. The indoor skydiving venue has the world's largest wind tunnel.

Giant Swings or Bungy Jumping Finale at AJ Hackett Sentosa: For the grand finale, Singapore's Giant Swings will hurl delegates into the air at speeds of up to 120km/hr. Meanwhile, extreme thrill-seekers can finish the day's experience with a bungy jump overlooking Siloso Beach on Sentosa Island.

FAST FACTS:

- The Fear Factor Tour is suitable for groups of 10 delegates per tour

MEET SINGAPORE'S PASSION AMBASSADORS

Create unique experiences for delegates fuelled by passionate locals such as Malcolm Lee and Subaraj Rajathurai. Like them, delegates will be empowered to do what they love in a city of limitless possibilities.

CHEF MALCOLM'S TWO-DAY GUIDE FOR FOODIES

Lee recommends venturing into Little India for a taste of aromatic briyani (an Indian spiced rice dish with meat or vegetables) at the Tekka Centre. Inside the centre, meeting and incentive delegates can explore the fresh food market where Lee regularly shops for groceries, and then hunt for bargains at the nearby Mustafa Centre, a 24-hour shopping mecca.

Dinner at Keng Eng Kee restaurant is the perfect way to end the day. Known for its hearty plates of Chinese zi char (Hokkien Chinese dialect for 'cook and fry', generally affordable, home-cooked Chinese fare), their speciality coffee pork ribs and chilli crab are among Malcolm's favourite dishes.

For a flavour of Peranakan culture, take a walk through colourful shophouses in the Peranakan enclaves of Joo Chiat and Katong – home to the famed Katong Laksa (spicy, coconut milk-based noodle soup) and Guan Hoe Soon Restaurant. Established in 1953, Guan Hoe Soon Restaurant has been serving up Straits Chinese favourites like babi pongteh (stewed pork with fermented soya bean), otak otak (grilled fish cake) and sambal udang (chilli shrimp).

MALCOLM LEE

Chef and owner of the world's only Michelin-starred Peranakan restaurant, Candlenut, Malcolm Lee constantly looks for ways to revive and re-imagine the flavours of his youth. His passion for food started during his childhood as he recalls the fragrant spices of his grandmother's traditional Peranakan (Straits-born people of Chinese and Malay/Indonesian heritage) cuisine unique to this region, which reflects a fusion of Chinese, Indonesian and Malay flavours.

"Food is a way of creating a deep connection with both friends and strangers. I believe the essence of Peranakan food is really about people. Food is love, and I hope people can feel that," Lee said.

FAST FACTS:

- Candlenut is located in Dempsey Hill, one of Singapore's favourite culinary hubs
- The restaurant offers partial dining buy-outs suitable for 30, 50 or 80 guests
- A private dining room for up to eight guests is also available

SUBARAJ RAJATHURAI

Many of Singapore's nature reserves exist due to the efforts of passionate individuals like Subaraj Rajathurai, a self-taught naturalist and veteran wildlife consultant. He fell in love with the rainforest at the age of 18 during a visit to Bukit Timah Nature Reserve.

Rajathurai's passion is fuelled by Singapore's blend of urban landscapes and hidden ecosystems, which keeps him fighting against rampant urbanisation. Over the past 30 years, he's made a significant contribution to the Lion City's rich biodiversity, which includes verdant parks and nature reserves, tropical rainforests, mangroves and coral ecosystems. Affectionately known as the 'City in a Garden', Singapore is home to more than 390 species of birds and at least 2,100 native plants.

"In Singapore, you can get from a five-star hotel to a rainforest in 20 minutes. You can spend five lifetimes exploring nature, and there would still be more to learn. Singapore is a gateway for nature," Rajathurai said.

SUBARAJ'S TWO-DAY GUIDE FOR NATURE LOVERS

Follow Subaraj on a working tour through untamed areas of Singapore where visiting corporate groups can experience the ecosystems that he has championed and shared with locals and visitors alike through the years.

Start exploring at MacRitchie Reservoir Park, a water catchment area in the heart of Singapore that's home to lush rainforests. Then venture into Sungei Buloh Wetland Reserve, an ASEAN Heritage site. Complete the day with a stroll through the Singapore Botanic Gardens, which Rajathurai helped develop. A UNESCO World Heritage site, the lush gardens are home to some of the tallest tree species in Southeast Asia.

On day two, take a short boat ride to Pulau Ubin, an island northeast of Singapore where cycling and walking trails traverse hills, mangroves and traditional kampongs. From the island, groups can explore the Chek Jawa Wetlands, a confluence of six natural habitats, ranging from rocky beaches to seagrass lagoons.
